

Beached Dreams

Poetry

*I'm on a desert island.
There's no one here but me.
I'm laughing like a monkey,
Swinging from a tree.*

*I'm wading through the shallows,
Cold splashes on my feet.
I'm guided by the ripples
To find something to eat.*

*I'm going to build a castle
Entirely out of sand.
It will stand for centuries,
The strongest in the land.*

*But now the sun is sinking,
My desert island fades.
Replaced by crowds and kiosks
Selling ices, kites and spades.*

*Can I come back tomorrow?
My castle will be gone.
But if it has been washed away,
I'll build another one.*
