

Two Little Kittens

Jane Taylor

Poetry

*Two little kittens, one stormy night,
Began to quarrel, and then to fight;
One had a mouse, the other had none,
And that's the way the quarrel begun.*

*"I'll have that mouse," said the biggest cat;
"You'll have no such thing," was the answer to that.
"I will have it, I say," and a clatter and clash,
Resounded through the kitchen with a bang and a smash.*

*The old woman seized her sweeping broom,
And swept the two kittens right out of the room;
The ground was covered with frost and snow,
And the two little kittens had nowhere to go.*

*So they lay them down on the mat at the door,
While the old woman finished her sweeping the floor.
Then they crept in again, as quiet as mice,
And found it was better to be loving and nice.*
